Dresden.

1. On 31 July and 1 August 1951, about 120 recruits received basic training in the yard of the Maschinengewehr Kaserne, Dresden (N 52/F 29). Source believed that the recruits were quartered there in addition to the troops previously seen in the installation. [redacted] in the billeting area on 1 August.

Kamenz.

2. Between 2 and 4 July, four units of about 80 recruits each were seen assembling in the yard of the Infanterie Kaserne, Kamenz (N 52/A 41). The volume of vehicular traffic at the installation was lower than at previous times. [redacted]

6. Saving previously reported that courses for officer candidates were conducted in the Heiterblick Kaserne, source, on 9 July, learned from an informant working in the installation that the trainees were junior lieutenants about 20 years of age, rather than officer candidates. Training activity between 2 and 9 July was less intensive than previously. From 100 to 150 troops were daily seen taking calisthenics in the morning. Groups of 20 soldiers received instruction on the tanks in front of the garages throughout the day. Less vehicular traffic than before was observed.

(2) Same source reported the Infanterie Kaserne to have quartered about 200 troops and the Panzer Kaserne a guard unit of about 50 men in mid-June 1951. [redacted]. The present report therefore indicates no changes up to the beginning of July. [redacted] belongs to a component of the 11th Gds Tank Div.

(4) The information by the three sources reciprocally confirms that the Heiterblick Kaserne was only partly occupied in the middle of July. The source of paragraph 6 reported in late June 1951 that an officer training course was conducted at the installation. [redacted]

(5) Based on information on the Flak Kaserne, Schoenau, during the past months, it has not been determined whether components of the 21st Gds Mtc Div and the XXIX Gds Mtc Rifle Corps from the installation have departed for troop training grounds. However, since other components of the division and the corps from Halle and Naumburg have been at the Kindel troop training grounds since April and May respectively, it is possible that the units from the barracks installation in Schoenau also went to Kindel at that time.
